THE VICTORIAN 1966

St. Genevieve-of-the-Pines
Asheville, North Carolina

To the girls of Saint Genevieve's, who helped weave the tapestry that has united our school in Pineship, this 1966 VICTORIAN is dedicated.

ST. GENEVIEVE-OF-THE-PINES ACADEMY
ASHEVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA

August 25, 1965

Dear Girls,

Another experience on the other side of the desk is behind us and now it is more than time to let you know about the opening of school.

We like to think of the Academy as a school family. Each of you comes with your individual personalities which have been developed by your unique backgrounds. But diversity among individuals does not mean that there cannot be unity. Each girl must weave the threads of her individuality with the threads of others - students and teachers - and if we weave together then the final result will be the beautiful tapestry of unity. We cannot expect this endeavor to be easy. At times threads will become tangled but just as a tapestry is not finished by cutting the thread, so neither will our unity be achieved by your cutting out others. It takes great patience to untangle a thread, greater patience to untangle the knots of human misunderstanding. I could carry this analogy on, but I think you understand. SGP needs each of you if 1965-1966 is to be what it should be.

FOREWORD

Now as we, the Seniors of 1966, look back we do understand. We are confident that our four years of high school have been what they were meant to be. A tapestry has been woven; a mosaic has been completed.

We came as freshmen, each of us different. Unable to recognize then the importance of individuality, we were afraid of our differences, afraid of clashing, afraid of just not fitting in. And in our fear we turned to each other and for the first time experienced unity.

Time soon found us unafraid. Class and school projects taught us to work together. Now, we received and we gave and because we learned to give, we experienced a deeper unity.

Through the pages of the 1966 VICTORIAN we hope to communicate some of this unity. May those who follow us find herein a reason for making unity their goal. May we who are leaving St. Genevieve's find in our yearbook the courage to share this goal with the world.

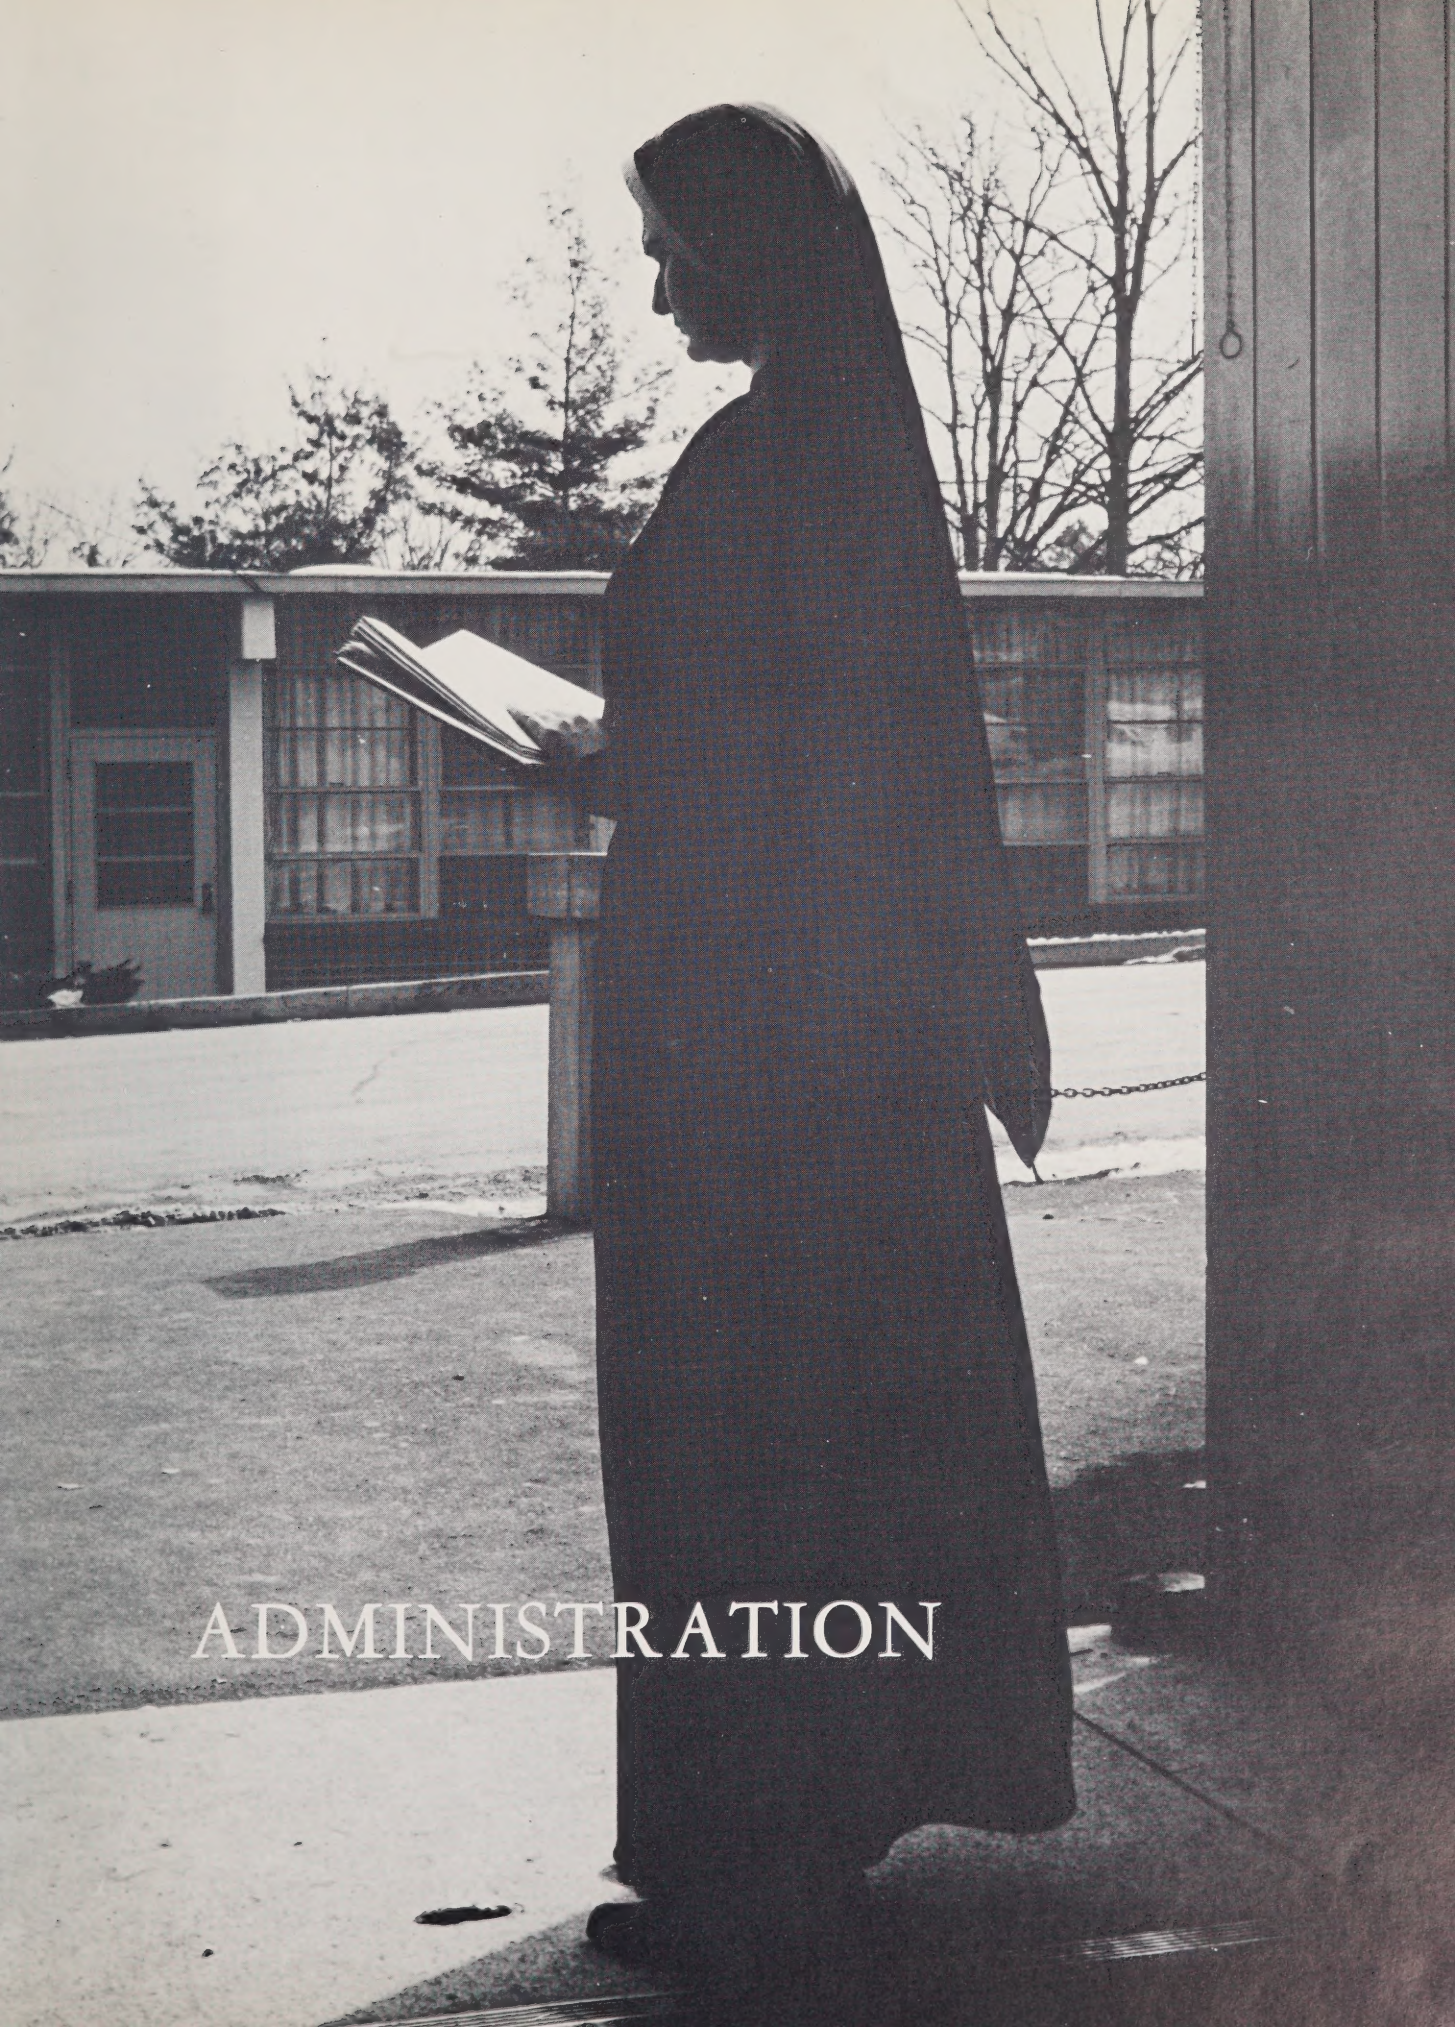
IN MEMORIAM

Mother Orpha Masse, R.C.E.

For those of us who knew her as a teacher, we can remember Mother Masse as determined, yet tempered with understanding.

Though our road toward learning was long and arduous, her enthusiasm awakened our minds and refreshed our daily lives.

Her interest was unfailing, and for this reason we knew each day as we walked into her class that we would leave, each of us a better person. We were assured of her love for us and her devotion to her work as a teacher.



ADMINISTRATION

REVEREND MOTHER SHARRY
Regional Superior

Reverend Mother Sharry links Saint Genevieve's with the work of the Religious of Christian Education in the United States. In her biannual visits to our campus, Reverend Mother exemplifies the eloquence and nobility of womanhood.

REVEREND MOTHER POTTS
Superior

Reverend Mother Potts co-ordinates the activities of the three departments while still maintaining a personal touch with each individual. She adds a definite glow to our campus with her warm friendliness and enthusiasm.

REVEREND HENRI BLANC
Chaplain

Throughout his eleven years as chaplain at Saint Genevieve-of-the-Pines, Father Blanc has provided us with inspiration by his continuous devotion and interest in us.

"The heart to conceive, the understanding to direct, and the hand to execute."

As a teacher . . . Mother Schwoyer captures our attention and impresses upon us ideas which will serve as resources in future years.

As a friend . . . "Happiness is different things to different people." Mother Schwoyer brings happiness to all of us in various ways.

As a religious . . . Mother Schwoyer takes a few quiet moments from her busy schedule to pray and meditate upon ideas to benefit her students.

Mrs. Lanier points out the location of Grenoble to Jan Stockinger, Margaret Israel, and Anne Kearney, who are among the nineteen SGP students she will chaperone on the proposed summer French trip.

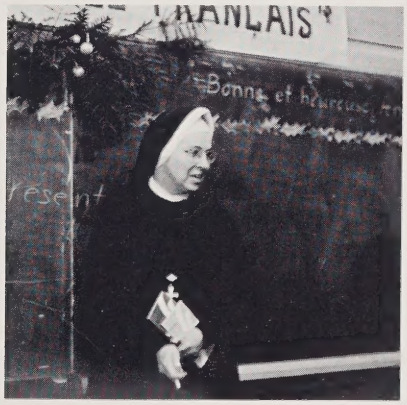
"Puff, the magic dragon, lived by the sea . . ."



Mother Chiasson warns the girls of a dictation.

Mrs. Elting demonstrates her efficiency as school secretary by doing three things at one time.

"A teacher affects eternity, he can never tell where his influence stops."

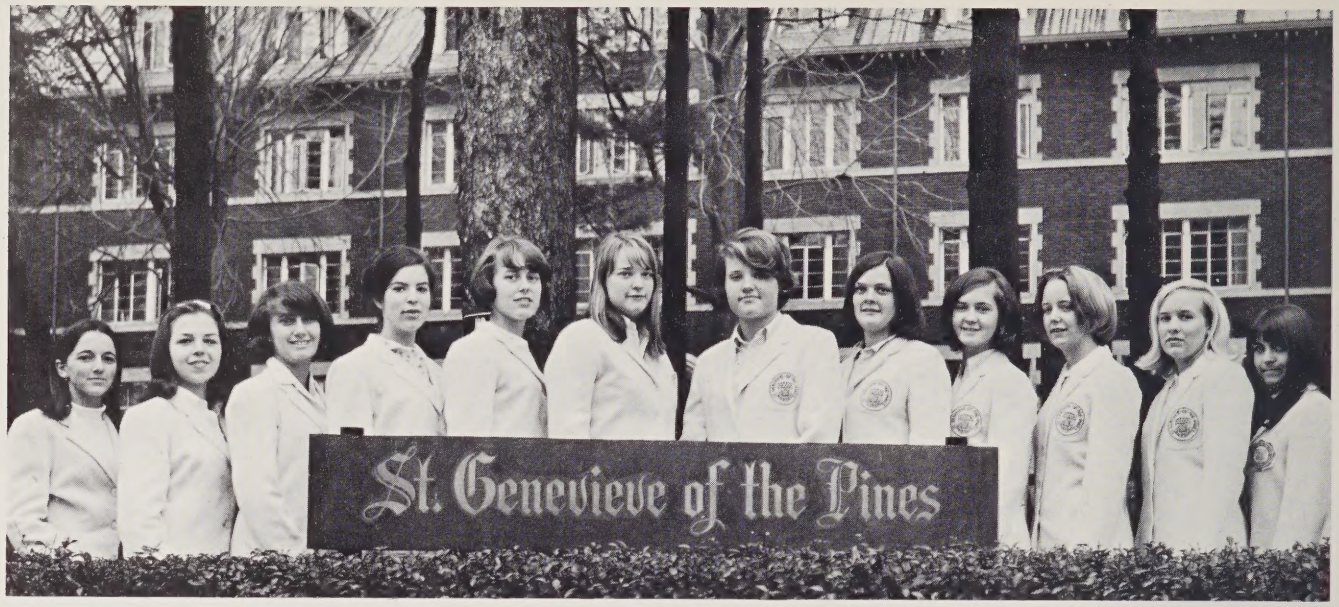
EXECUTIVE



Members of the Student Council include: Jenny Morgan, Beverly Dugan, Margaret Isreal, Connie Lerner, Elissa McDade, president, Nanny Swoyer, Debbie Anthony, Trish Moore, Carolyn Gatz, vice-president Cindy Smith, secretary-treasurer Anny Kearney, and Linda LoPresti.

Anne and Cindy locate Mary's lost book, shoes, mouse ears . . .

Councilors Nanny and Debbie work on eye-catching bulletin boards.

Mother Schwoyer shows Carolyn and Elissa that she has finally found the right key as they prepare to depart for the state student council convention in Burlington. During the same trip, Elissa served as secretary of the Catholic Student Council Congress.

The student councilors took charge of all study halls and enforced the Academy rules. This year they initiated plans for the Project Peace Thanksgiving Bible Vigil and Christmas Party.

The Student Government required each club to present a charter to it for approval in order to organize the clubs and to ensure that each club satisfactorily fulfilled a need in the students' extra-curricular life.

Having brightened up the school bulletin boards, the Student Council pepped up the school year by sponsoring DREAM Week. Held during March, DREAM Week included: Dress-up Day, Reverse Day, Etiquette Day, Action Day, and Morale Day. A talent show climaxed the week's activities.

Activity evaluation sheets, a supplement to the Pine Cone, and organization of Parents' Week-end rounded out the Student Council's projects for the year.

Class presidents Debbie Anthony, Elissa McDade, Beverly Dugan, and Jenny Morgan plan for Parents' Weekend. The classes respectively sponsored the play "You Can't Take It With You," a father-daughter tea dance, Saturday luncheon, and Sunday brunch.

Senior Class officers anticipate the annual New York trip, which included an excursion to Boston. They are vice-president Trish Moore, president Elissa McDade, and secretary Linda LoPresti. Not pictured is Bernitta Beeler, treasurer.

Working on decorations for the prom are junior officers: treasurer Mary Jo Finlay, president Debbie Anthony, secretary Terry Rector, and vice-president Carolyn Gatz.

Planning place settings for the annual Academy banquet are the sophomore officers: Margaret Isreal, vice-president; Alice Henderson, treasurer; Beverly Dugan, president. Beth Degenhardt, secretary, is not pictured.

Freshmen class officers work (?) raking leaves on Hazel Day to climax their initiation into the Academy. They include president Jenny Morgan, treasurer Stacy Rankin, secretary Katherine Rorison, and vice-president Connie Lerner.

Under the supervision of the three kings, I.C.C. member Anne Collisson helps Rennie Fuller and Anne Tysinger complete the decorations for the Candlelight Supper.

Unity is the Product of Individual Contributions.

Doree and Trish arrive at school eager to begin a new day. They represent us, the senior class, coming prepared to seek knowledge and to combine our own ideas with the ideas of our faculty and fellow students. Throughout high school, we have strived to attain unity in the world within us and then in the world around us.

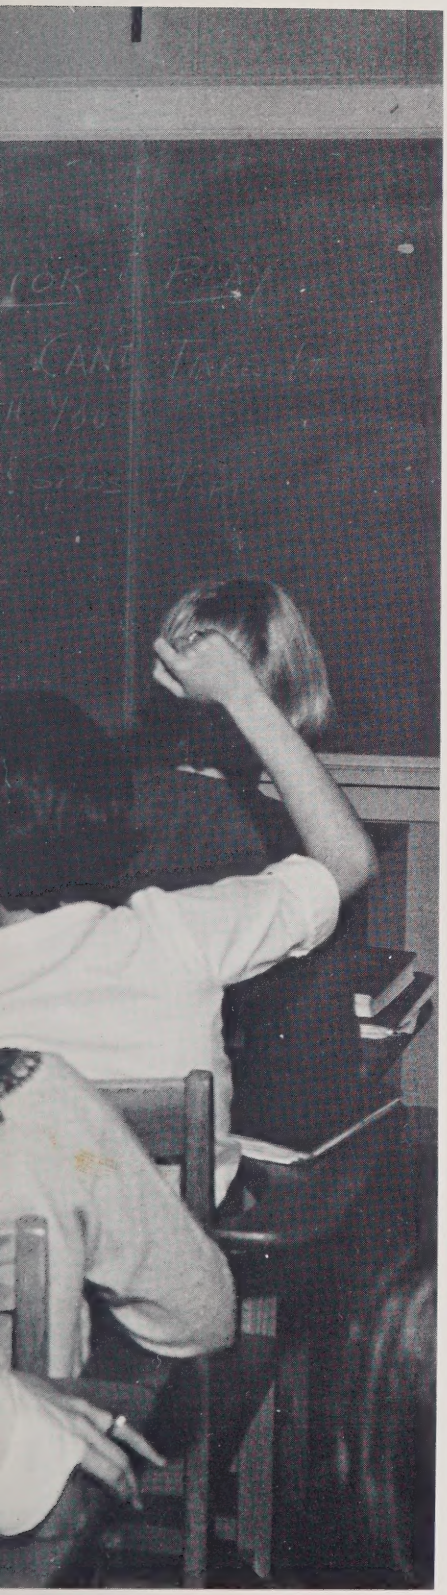
Realizing our individuality, we have each taken separate paths toward social maturity, guided by the ideals instilled within us. We have developed individual talents, which we have contributed to class activities. Through shared experiences during leisure moments and classroom hours, we have come to know and understand each other. We have also learned that we must participate in a dialogue of giving and receiving our ideas and impressions.

As a class, we have broadened our perspectives by traveling. We have also learned how to work as a team, always employing the principles of good sportsmanship as we "tried harder". As seniors, we have molded our talents, interests, and personalities so that many have become one.

Working together as a class we

For four years, our class president, Elissa McDade has led us into various class activities as a team striving for the best. During those hectic fifteen-minute meetings, she has been the only one who could maintain order and keep our ideas coming.

have accomplished many things.



Jo Ann and Mary ponder, as Lucy exclaims, "Good Grief, Charlie Brown, they are finally changing the bulletin boards!"

Suzanne closes the door of St. Genevieve's for the last time as all seniors must. Behind us lie many years filled with memories and the feelings we have acquired from the taste of life we have already had. Ahead a new journey, through college . . . and life. But wherever we go and whatever we do, we will always carry a piece of Saint Genevieve's with us and will know that we have left a part of ourselves behind.

ACTIVITIES

THE NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

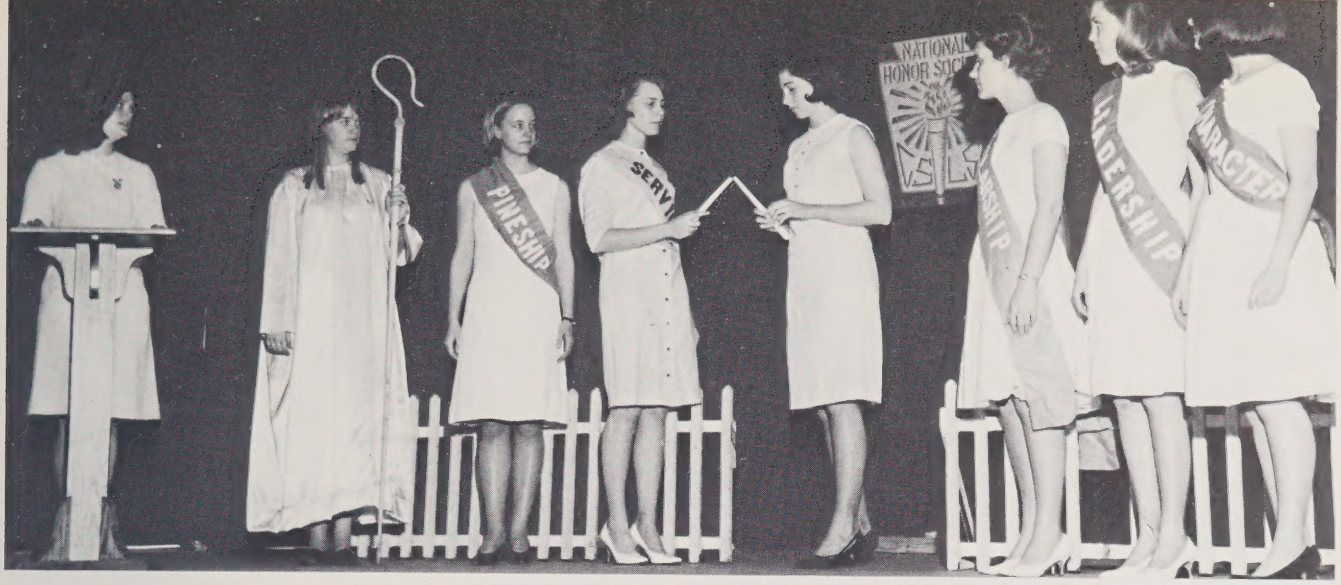
Saint Genevieve's confers many honors upon her students, the highest of these being membership in the National Honor Society. The girls selected must meet the qualifications of scholarship, leadership, character, and service. In the formal induction held during Parents' Weekend, the girls pledged themselves to uphold these ideals.

PRESIDENT TRISH MOORE
Trish demonstrates exceptional devotion to her school. Victorian editor, class vice-president, and Field Day captain have been a few of her responsibilities. A National Merit Finalist, Trish seeks Mother Schwoyer's advice concerning her choice of college.

VICE-PRESIDENT JACKIE GILBERT
Jackie won a grant to study biology at Clemson last summer. She is also a Merit Finalist.

SECRETARY BECKY WARNER
Becky completes the forms that resulted in her acceptance, with a grant, to Stetson University.

TREASURER LAURA HODGES
Laura has a great desire for learning. She fulfills her responsibilities by "trying harder."



At the N.H.S. induction ceremony, Anne Collisson lights her candle from Service as the Honor Society and Student body officers look on.

At an assembly program presented by the N.H.S., president Trish Moore delivers her speech on Communism.

Those girls elected to membership in the National Honor Society include: Anne Collisson, Louise Fowler, Sue Crowe, Becky Lineberger, Jackie Cassada, Stuart Camblos, and probationary members Beverly Dugan and Anne Kearney. Not pictured: Linda LoPresti.

The Quill and Scroll Society for high school journalists accepts Doree Koontz, Jane Lipton, Carolyn Gatz, Sue Crowe, and Trish Moore.

The Victorian editor, Trish Moore, is flanked by Doree Koontz, picture editor; Jane Lipton, assistant; Elissa McDade, copy; Jacke Gilbert, assistant, not pictured.

Doree: "How in the world did I get into this?"

Trish: "Let's finish this annual—just for fun!"

Jane: "Trisha, if you make one more wise crack . . ."

Jackie: "Hum . . ."

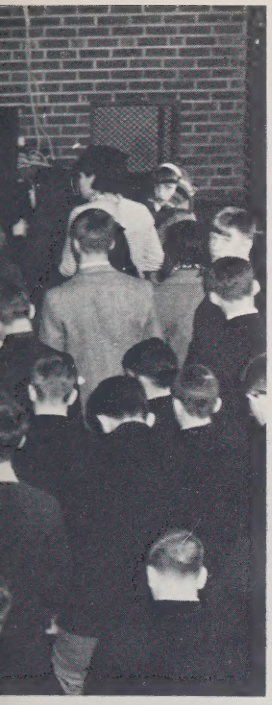
Elissa: "I don't believe it, it, it . . ."

Mr. Johnson takes Connie's senior picture, while Doree waits to have her picture taken as the model for Academy Rummage Sale.

Carolyn and Sue work together on the VICTORETTE layouts, employing the journalism they learned at Catholic University last summer.

VICTORETTE staff member, Susan Ellis, interviews Grammar School Headmistress, Mother Guilka, about the Prep's accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. Gibbons Hall also gained this recognition.

The scholastic year is officially opened the first week of school with the Mass of the Holy Spirit celebrated by Father Blanc. During the Christmas season, Mary Salem lights a candle at the boarders' crib scene on third floor. Second semester commences with the annual Academy Retreat. Father Brady encourages the girls to be open and frank in their discussions. Throughout this year, students have led prayers at morning assemblies. Pictured at an assembly are Mary Branstrom and Lida Quillen. Linda LoPresti pauses before the Baccalaureate Service which officially closes the school year.



Judy interviews Mary Costa backstage at Civic Music.

Debbie and Elizabeth practice for Spring Recital.

"Music brings harmony to a world of discord."

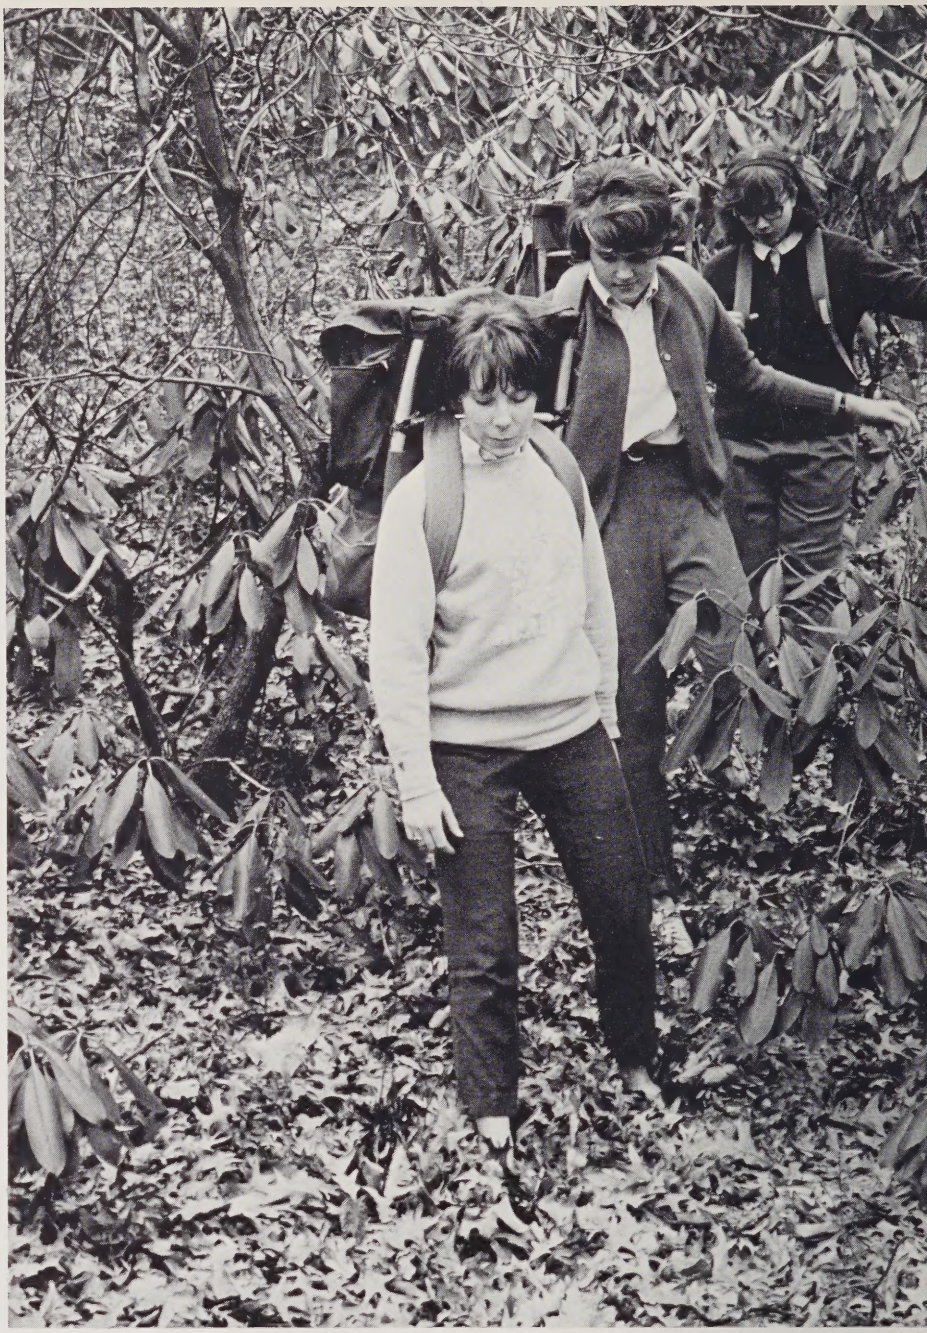
"The hills are alive with the sound of music" as Dr. Edwin leads the Glee Club.

The shepherds gather around the crib in adoration at the Academy Christmas play presented by the Dramatics Club.

Mrs. Bergere advises the Dramatic's Club officers: Stuart Camblos, Linda LoPresti, and Debbie Anthony on their constitution.

Sharon and Nora post the paintings created in the Art Department.

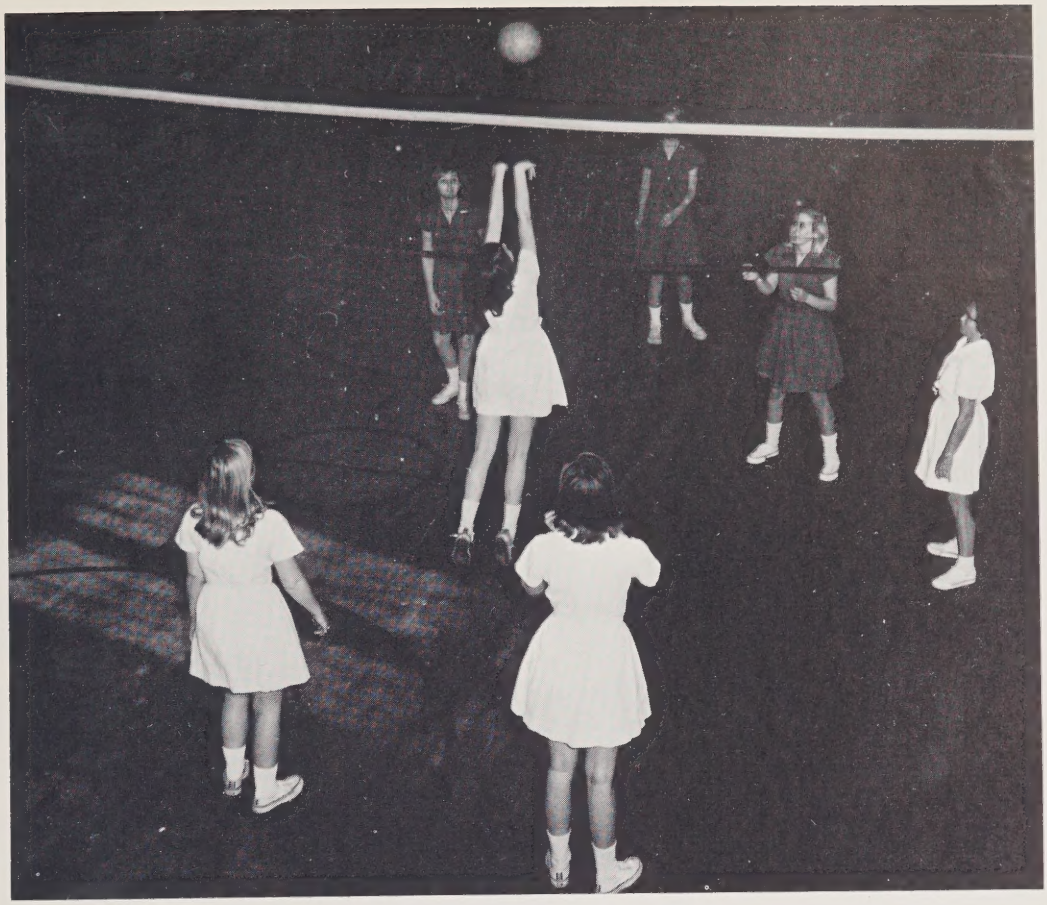
Debbie Ednwy, who has merited many art awards, sketches for pleasure.



"If I should lose, let me stand by the road and cheer as the winners go by."

Pineer officers president, Doreen Forney; vice-president, Penny Turner; and secretary-treasurer, Paul Buroughs, plan with Mrs. Carter for the schedule of annual athletic events.

The first activity shown is Leslie, Debbie, and Jackie descending from the wilderness of Mount LeConte, "the unclimbable mountain." Taking advantage of the few snow days, Trish and Doreen headed for the ski slopes at Cataloochee. Next, Cathy and Anne team up for a lively set of tennis. During the volleyball season, Pineer Club members practiced for games with Lee Edwards. Throughout the school year, the girls must exercise to keep fit.



The seniors "tried harder" and won the softball tournament.

The seniors charged their way to victory in the soccer tourney.

The juniors run through Rainbow Relay during a Field Day practice.

The freshmen exhibit their skill in volleyball.

The sophomores jump for the ball at a basketball practice.

Each class elects a representative to the school social committee, which plans the parties and dances throughout the year. The members include: freshman Irven Myer, sophomore Debbie Gardner, junior Carolyn Cheves, senior Penny Rice.

Brenda Lunsford and her mother share the beginning of a new school year at the Mother-Daughter Tea.

Before the February semi-formal dance, Penny Rice takes Walker Aderholt's hand as they anticipate the event.

At the Get-Together Party the mousy freshmen suffer through their initiation. Nervously, Irvin passes the M&M to Stacy; meanwhile, Christy, Nancy, and Carolyn wait their turn.

Will the real Hazel Burke please step forward?

Happiness is getting Nancy for a sister.

Hazel scolds Christy for evading work.

At the Open House, the students turn the tables on their parents and serve them for a change.

Mother Schwoyer serves as chief cook and bottle washer for the boarders on Saturday afternoons.

Jenny Morgan and Chris Asheworth dance the basic to the music of the "The Shadows" at "The Pink Panther."

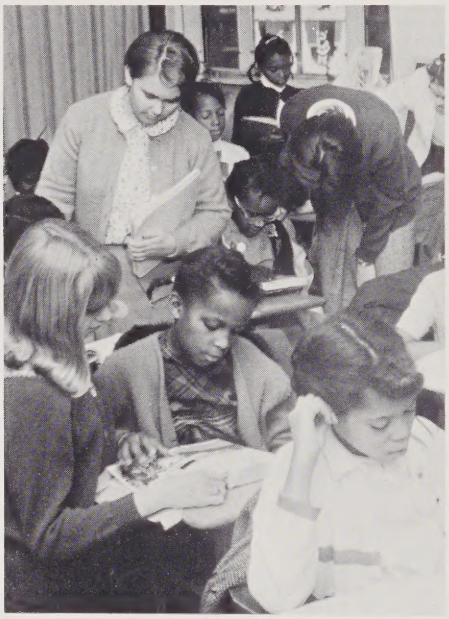
Beth Cohan and Terry Rector enjoy a leisurely Country Club Saturday, looking forward to breakfast in bed.

Rennie Fuller, Katie Loeb, Marianne Jaskwhich, Beverly Ashe, and Judy Myers depart on another Saturday trip.

PROJECT PEACE

Two years ago, 250 Negro children entered through the gates of Saint Genevieve's. Today, these children still come to learn from us, to share their experiences, and to be with their friends. Not only do we offer our love, but we also try to teach them the knowledge they seek, whether it be in their studies, their games, or their talents. The girls give these children a part of themselves and receive much in return.

The spirit of peace develops from the echo of a child's laugh, an encouraging word, a whispered secret, and many other sounds which blend in harmony. "Let us, therefore, follow after the things which make for peace."

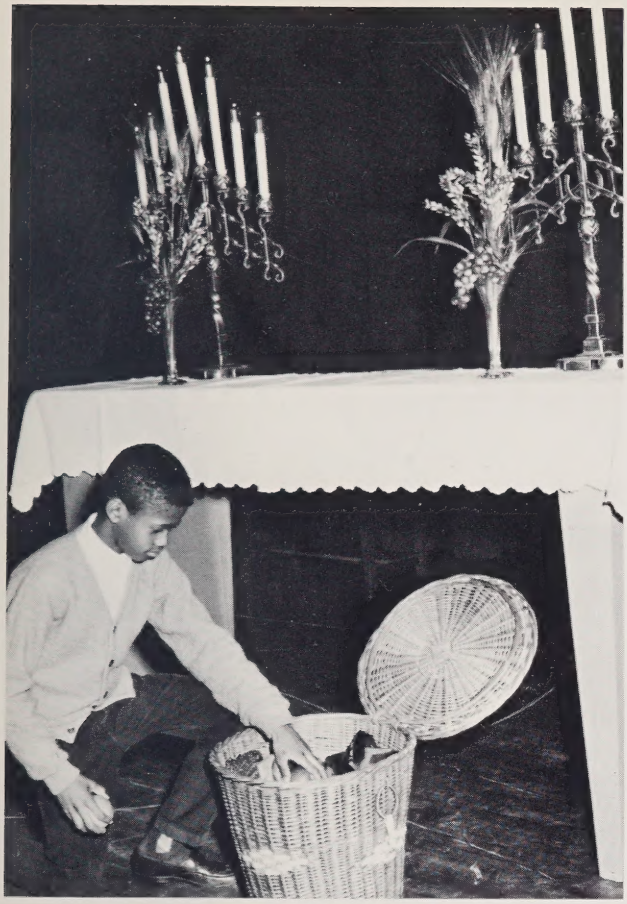


At work . . .

At play . . .

The children appear eager to begin an afternoon of study and play.

Nora endeavors to bring out these children's creative abilities.



This little boy shares his gifts at the Thanksgiving Bible Vigil.

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace to men of good will."

"The eyes are blind. One must look with the heart. . . It is only with the heart that one can see rightly, what is essential is invisible to the eye."

Happiness is a Christmas made brighter because someone cares.

On Field Day, the children display the skills and sportsmanship they have developed.
